

Concept sketch, not yet in production as I’m sending in my proposal.

Here, data is pulled in from user-generated content to give an overview of their self-assessed risk profile. The old Word template used a simple version of the same matrix, but all figures had to be manually tallied and entered by hand, and of course there were no links or warnings.

Warning that the user has not completed all tasks, and a link pointing directly to where they can fix this.

re-use of the same risk-level colour palette throughout the tool

Risikomatrise før tiltak

Hover functionality allowing users (and the Ombudsman) to see at a glance which risk scenarios have a particular profile, and to open those pages in new tabs.